Which Shall It Be?

"Which shall it be?" I said to Fate,
Holding the world in my hand,
(Heart-pain or duties, which have we yet
As well as the time's work to get?)
And I heard Fate's answer speak
My voice—not hers—so clearly low and weak,
"Will he care which I choose?" I said;
"Will he know which I refuse?"
And I laughed at the fancy, and life was glad
As I answered, "Let Love go!"

I let Love go.
A little—and I said, "Shall I live,
If he stays from me one year, one day,
One hour? I can—for love is given."
Then the Fate I had feared to anger spoke,
Gravely, "Love is the crown of life."
And I said, "Let Love go!"

"Dear John," said I,
"We both are young, and there is they be
A thousand years, how can I bear
To lose you for all that time?"
And I heard Fate's voice reply,
"Who loses love shall find it not."

We were parted by the tide-bed,
And I saw the ship sail out
Where the lake broke
Beyond the harbor bar,
Bearing my love from me,
And I knew that love was dead,
And I said, "Not for me!"

Years passed. I sailed with the ships,
Heard speak the tongues of men,
Saw the cities and the fields,
Learned the ways and lore
Of the peoples of the earth,
Felt the heart-beat of the world,
Throbbing with life and love,
And I said, "Now I am glad—
Now I am glad!"

And the years went on in even way
Were still not dim, nor dull, nor gray;
And I said, "I shall be content,
Watching the world go round,
Hearing its great heart beat,
Finding its secret and its law,
Till I, too, am part of it all."

Then I came back to the old place,
Where I saw the lake ships,
Heard the tongues of men,
Felt the heart-beat,
Found the secret and the law,
Looked for the life and love,
And I said, "Now I am glad!"

And I met her on the street,
Where I met her years ago,
And I said, "Dear love, I knew
You would come back some day;
And I waited and I watched,
Watching for you and hoping,
Trusting that you would be true,
Trusting that you would come."

She looked at me with her eyes,
Where I saw the lake ships,
Heard the tongues of men,
Felt the heart-beat,
Found the secret and the law,
Looked for the life and love,
And I said, "Now I am glad

THE PATH OF COMMERCE.

Events are rapidly deciding the course which the principal commerce of the world is to seek the West and the East will ultimately take. The rapid progress of the railroad to the Pacific denotes the early bending of the great tide of trade to the shores of the United States, bordering on both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. From the East, this great work progresses at the rate of two or two and a half miles of completed road each day. From the West the advance in this direction is less rapid on account of the great mountain ranges which have to be overcome by heavy grades or very tunnels. Yet, the force of men employed is so large, that the work progresses more rapidly than any similar undertaking has ever been before done.

The great Sierra Nevada is the Sierra Nevada is completed, or nearly so, which leaves but a few miles of the labor to be performed on that half of the route; and trains of cars, ere this will be, running under that great chain of mountains which has until lately, appeared to present a nearly insurmountable obstacle to communication between the two coasts. The completion of the entire road is anticipated as early as 1870.

The success of the establishment of a line of steamers for freight and passengers from San Francisco, the Western terminus of this great line of railroad, to the ports of Japan and China, is another of the triumphs of modern commercial enterprise, and, as an indication of the fitness of this route for the course of trade. The steamer of these steamers has just completed with success its first trip, while the other has completed two trips going and returning. The success of these pioneer voyages establishes the possibility of regular trade by this route, and gives plausibility that they are but the precursors of numerous vessels of the largest class that will soon take their places in the line.

Where once the feasibility of this route of travel and trade is established in the convictions of the commercial world, its shortness and safety will give it a high position in the general favor. It will shorten the journey from England to China a few weeks, a large part of the railroad, avoiding many of the disagreeables and dangers of the present mode of reaching that country. It lies in latitudes destitute of those changes that now exist in voyages from Europe around the Cape of Good Hope, the whole distance being in latitudes of comparatively uniform temperature; and it is not without gratification to us that the enterprise which has begun and, so far, completed these great improvements, is American enterprise, that they are made with American capital and managed with American skill!

Greater than all benefits of a merely mercantile character, which may be anticipated from the success of these enterprises, is the moral influence which they are to exercise over the different races of men. Easier and more frequent communication cannot fail to advance those great interests which civilization and Christianity always have in view. It is the seclusion of nations, and not their mingling, that promotes barbarism and the lower stages of human society. The more they see of each other, and the more intimate their relations are, the more rapidly the light supplants the darkness, and elevates the race.

The Union Pacific Railroad. Open 125 Miles.

A Few weeks since we noticed the opening of the Union Pacific Railroad to Julesburg, 377 miles west of Omaha, and sometime this week we expect to report its completion to Crow Creek, a point 18 miles further west, making a total of 125 miles. Fifty miles of track in addition are graded ready for the iron, and there is no doubt of the completion of the road to the base of the Rocky Mountains early in the Fall. The company are confident that the whole line to the Pacific will be open for business in 1870. The Indians have annoyed the surveying parties and forwarders, who are many hundred miles in advance of the work; but they have a wholesome fear of the power of the nation that is miles in advance of the work; but they have a wholesome fear of the power of the nation that is miles in advance of the work; but all trades can without interruption.

The business of the Company has been most flattering. The earnings of the operating Atlantic 1st, were about $700,000; but as reports for the first week in July has not been received. The exact figures cannot be given. These earnings occurred from operating an average of not more than 250 miles of road. Before deducting operating expenses, the balance is far in excess of the interest on all bonds of the company on the amount of bonds they can issue on that distance. It should be remembered that this result is from a Way business alone, through business not yet, and is not to be compared with the vast Through business that must follow the opening of the whole line to the Pacific. The success of the enterprise seems to be thoroughly assured, and we can see no reason why the First Mortgage Bonds are not entitled to rank among the first of securities. The daily sales are now about [illegible] that the Company already controls the field, and is handling the prize.

Gen. Butler has made a report to the Congressional Committee in reference to the exchange of prisoners during the late war. He says Gen. Hitchcock, Commissioner of Exchange, in a letter dated, in August, 1863, [illegible] to exchange man for man, and Gen. Grant sent him the following order: "Hold on to our men in the hands of the enemy. Exchange them. Put it into their way to get them in the ranks to fight us again. Every man released on parole or otherwise becomes an active soldier in the enemy's service, either directly or indirectly. If we can now get a system of exchange which includes all prisoners taken, we have begun and will end the whole South is exterminated. If we hold those caught, they amount to no more than dead men. At this time it is time to release all rebel prisoners North would insure Sherman's defeat, and would compromise our safety here."

Ten years ago there were 25,000 Cherokees. To-day there are about 14,000. War, rum and disease have been too much for the nation.

CRUISE OF THE NEW YORK YACHT SQUADRON.—The New York Yacht Squadron arrived here yesterday afternoon, having left New London in the morning. Arrived off Stonington, a thick fog settling in, the Commodore signalled the Squadron to go into Stonington. From some cause, however, the signal was not observed by the whole Squadron, as only five vessels,—the Fleetwing, Dauntless, Fleur de Lis, Florence, and Alice—went in, the others standing on their course. Of those [illegible] the Fleetwing arrived first, coming to anchor [illegible] o'clock. She was followed in rapid succession by the Addie Vosehis, Widow Wiz, Rambler, Magic, Nautilus, Calypso, and Wilkens, in the order in which they are named, followed by the other vessels of the Squadron except the five which went into Stonington.

The others came in about 5 o'clock, the Palmer and Dauntless (late Edmond Roy, passing Castle Hill first together, the Palmer having the advance, having headed the Dauntless by a considerable stretch on the passage from Stonington. Both vessels displayed a perfect cloud of canvas, and made a magnificent appearance. The wind was very light during the entire passage, giving the advantage to the Fleetwing craft.

The following are the yachts enlisted in this cruise, and at anchor this morning in the harbor: Phantom, Commodore Henry G. Stebbins; Dauntless, Vice Commodore James Gordon Bennett, Jr.; Widgeon, Rear Commodore Lloyd Phoenix; Calypso, Capt. John H. Beebe; Fleetwing, Capt. Geo. A. Osgood; Fleur de Lis, Capt. John S. Dickerson; Julia, Capt. Crawford Allen Jr.; Magic, Capt. W. H. McVickar; Palmer, Capt. R. T. Lapes; Rambler, Capt. H. S. Fearing; Restless, Capt. Wm. Douglas; Silvie, Capt. E. Dodge; Sappho, Capt. E. A. Lawrence; Sallie E. Day, Capt. N. B. Palmer; Eva, Capt. Chas. E. Pendleton; Evelyn, Capt. A. Stebbins; Josie, Capt.——; Nautilus, Capt. A. A. Kleckloefer; White Wing, Capt. Shippen Howard; Addie Vosehis, Capt. Wm. Vosehis.

Besides the above there are the vessels Minnie owned by Capt. William Davidson, of New York, and owned by him as a tender to his yacht Restless. She is a perfect steamer in miniature, being 105 in length, screw, and driven by [illegible] power. Also the steamer Kate. This boat is a steamer of 30 horse power. She was built by her owner C. H. Mallory, Esq., of Mystic, and this is her third trip. Her [illegible] from accommodation [illegible] to visit.

Two new yachts have been added to the squadron since last season—the Sappho and Addie Vosehis. The first named boat deserving of special notice being the largest and most complete and elegant yacht ever constructed in this or any other country. Her dimensions are as follows: Measurement, 340 tons; length, 127 feet; depth of water 12 feet. Her main [illegible] 20 by 30 feet, and her great length gives ample space for state-rooms, berths, &c., which are large and airy, and all her appointments are of the most superb description. She has a flush deck, and is the only vessel ever built in which the head of the bowsprit will not come in above the deck. She was built by C. & R. Pollon, of New York, and was launched only about six weeks since. Her cost was about $50,000. She presents a truly magnificent appearance on the water, and her owner, D. A. Lowerson, Esq., informs us that he has every reason to be satisfied with his vessel.

Nearly all the yachts have guests on board, among those on board the Squadron are Hon. Moses H. Grinnell, Collector Smyth, of New York, Messrs. G. L. Schuyler, Alexander Hamilton, C. Lawrence, Henry H. Draper, and —— Holbrook, of New York, Capt. Codlon, of Massachusetts, and Hamilton Morton, Esq., Secretary of the New York Yacht Club. Among the guests on board the Palmer, is Rev. Dr. Paton, of New Haven.

The yachts left here at 9 o'clock this morning, to proceed to the residence of E. Dodge, Esq., near Fall River, by invitation from that gentleman, who will provide for the members of the Club and their guests an old-fashioned Rhode Island Clambake.

On Saturday a grand Regatta of the entire squadron, for a series of prizes put up by the Commodore, will take place. The course will be around the south end of Block Island and back to Newport, and return. Should the weather be foggy, or the wind less than an 8 knot breeze, we understand the regatta will be postponed.

The squadron will probably proceed East from here on Monday, to Newport and Vineyard Sound.

The cruise has been postponed later than usual on account of the dispersion of the squadron in New London by [illegible].

The following is the published programme of the Regatta:

Sweepstakes open to all yachts belonging to the New York Yacht Club on a series of plans provided by the Commodore of the Squadron, at Newport, Saturday, August 10th, 1867.

Yachts competing for this prize will [illegible] to the Light House at Brenton's Reef, N. [illegible] with Brenton Reef Lights, at [illegible] A. M., subject to instructions of the Committee on the morning of the race.

The course will be from the Light House to a stake boat anchored about one mile [illegible] by North from the Light House on Brenton's Point, Block Island, returning [illegible] South and East, to the Light House by a stake boat anchored opposite the North side of Fort Adams, passing to the [illegible] the stake boat and the fort. [illegible] in eight hours, to be considered a [illegible] race day.

No allowance to be made to vessels [illegible] Rules and Regulations of the New York Yacht Club to be observed in all respects as to sails, ballast, [illegible] &c., when not conflicting with the above sailing instructions.

Committee.

In addition to our regular report of the proceedings of the New York Yacht Squadron, we shall have more space in a future issue for a detailed account of the personal experience of a guest on board one of the vessels, during the voyage from New York.

THE subscriber would respectfully call the attention of the public to the above

Admirable Cooking Stove,

now offered to the public, and which has received the highest premium at the Fairs of the American Institute, New York, and the Mechanics' Fair, Boston, for the past three years. Numerous testimonials from the most respectable families in the city can be seen at the store. Every stove is warranted to give perfect satisfaction, and if, after a fair trial, it does not prove so, it can be returned and the money will be refunded. The Peerless is kept under the fire, so that the oven is always ready for use. It is the cheapest stove in use, as it will do the work equally well with one-half the fuel required for other stoves. Call and see it in operation at 107 Thames street.

Extensive repairing done on all kinds of stoves, ranges, furnaces, &c., at short notice. Also, a large assortment of Stove Pipes, Elbows, Zinc, Sheet Iron, &c., kept on hand.
